Something Further About That Explosion.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—A portion of a letter from Prince Alexander of Hesse to his wife, dated St. Petersburg, February 17th, and published here says:

"I was received at the railway station by the Emperor. He was dressed by Prince Alexander of Hesse, and was conducted to Winter Palace, where the Emperor awaited me at the staircase. We were proceeding through the large corridor to his Majesty's apartments, when suddenly a fearful detonation took place. I was surprised as if an earthquake. The gas was extinguished and we were left in total darkness. At the same time a horrible dust and the smell of gun powder or dynamite filled the corridor. Some one shouted to me that an explosion had taken place in the dining room where the table was laid for dinner. I hastened thither with the Czarina and grand duke Vladimir, while count Adlerburg was in doubt as to what might happen, held back the Emperor. We found all the windows broken, and the walls rent. Dr. Grotius had been delayed half an hour for my arrival, and it was owing to this circumstance that the Imperial family had not yet assembled in the dining hall."

LONDON, Feb. 23.—A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph says: General Gurko, Governor General of St. Petersburg, told the chairman of the civil and criminal police, and General Sourouff, prefect of police of St. Petersburg, he received from the nihilist committee informing them that they need not trouble themselves to make arrangements for illuminations on the occasion of the Czar's arrival, as the revolutionaries were preparing for such an illumination as has not been seen since Nero burned Rome.

London, Feb. 23.—A dispatch from Calcutta says: Letters carried by Missouli Khan, from General Roberts to Mohammedan Jan to General Roberts, which were sent with the evident object of coming to the rescue of the rebels, did not improve that compass. Judges believe that any loss through settlement than the acceptance of Mora Khan, son of Yaqub Khan, as heir to the Amirsipah, and the government of the country by English during the last year will lead to further disturbance. No further news has been received of Abdurrohman Khan. It is not believed that he has yet crossed the Oxus. Severe weather and heavy snows are reported in the Cotan and Khyber passes.

Adams and party will meet at Pueblo on Tuesday, and proceed to Washington, which point they will reach on Friday evening. They will then proceed to the Ute country, which is absolutely quiet and have not spoken to Adams. Jack has been somewhat reluctant as to his journey through the mountains to hostile sections. He states the Indians have scattered over the country and are scattered not more than ten miles together at this time. All of them are north of Grand River in Roan mountains. The winter has been a very severe one in the mountains and Indians who have been compelled to rely upon their own resources for obtaining food have found it difficult to get a supply, as game has been very scarce.

Charles S. Prentiss, of Toledo, O., went to Paris and then to England to be cured of a disease which the best physicians of both countries had done what they could for him gave up in despair and returned to America to die. Here he received further treatment from other skillful physicians without benefit, and while "listlessly lingering in pain and agony," he saw his physician, Dr. Kildonan, and Liver Cure, took it, and was completely cured in a few weeks. He gives circumstantial details of his painful experience and astonishing cure, in a long letter to H. H. Warner & Co., which will be forwarded on application.

Be sure and read the new advertisement of the Rev. Mr. Tucker, everyone is bound of this important establishment, one of the largest in the South and when we tell our readers that they have just received a fresh line of goods the very natural inference is that everything in the latest style of drygoods is "Tucker's."

Reuben Hodge (colored) is an amateur throat cutter. He tried his hand on Sam Parham (white), yesterday, and was successful. He was arrested, and police man Goodwin saw the three knaves on his person and accommodated Rule to a bunk in the station house 'til this morning, when he will be tried.

The Raleigh Light Infantry paraded yesterday in honor of the birthday of Washington. They presented a fine appearance and their march was highly complimentary. The town was unusually quiet. All employees should take a holiday in this company and not hesitate to let the young men have an hour or two of leave of absence to participate in these parades and drills.

POLICE COURT.

Two participants in an affray were bound over to court. Two drunk and down were gravely furnished with apartments in the station house.

More Cash.

But They Made 'Em Bump.

A small boy was looking at some Scripture engravings, and gazed long and earnestly upon a representation of Adam and Eve in their primitive state. Turning to his mother, he asked, "Ma, didn't Adam and Eve wear any clothes?" "No, my son." The lad reflected a moment, and said, "By hokeys, though, but I'll beat the mosquitoes just made them hump themselves lively!"

All About Yellow Tobacco.

W. A. Davis, Editor of the Oxford, N. C., Torchlight, has just published a handsome little book containing the experience of fifty of the most successful tobacco farmers in the state. It is a valuable book, and you will want to have it.

Robbers on the Rampage.

NUMBER ONE.

Mr. Hollis Horton lives eight miles east of Raleigh, he brought some cotton to town, sold it, and started back home about dark; when two miles out, the party of robbers knocked him in the head. Mr. H. is minus $80 in cash and all the truck he had in his wagon.

NUMBER TWO.

Mrs. Woodley is a widow lady; she lives in the country and came to town yesterday to dispose of some produce. Mrs. Woodley made some purchases at a store on Hillsboro street and left the place with her purchases to the value of some $150.00 on the counter. Recollecting this fact she returned to the store to secure her purse when a negro snatched it and ran, making good his escape. His arrest we understand has not been made.

In Sunday's News this little item appeared:

"A good intelligent boy from 14 to 15 years old can find permanent employment by calling at this office Monday morning at ten o'clock."

The reporter started for the office yesterday morning about 9 o'clock—but that is to say he struck the postoffice about that time, but it was fully an hour after that before he had edged our way to sit down in the office.

We have seen lots of boys—was a boy once himself, and "bin bin tew skul," and there was generally a few other boys there besides us, but we never saw so many boys in all our life as mobbed the airway to this office filled the room; lined the sidewalks and hung on the copy hooks, at the printers' cases, before.

The foreman and all the compositors had been constantly engaged all the morning answering inquiries and doing some of the minor office applications. When we reached there 'twas the majority. The book-keeper had erected a permanent seat at the telephone, giving, with a haggard countenance, as his reason therefore, that he never expected to get an opportunity to live. The telephone in town had been calling him since daybreak. He had grown deaf in one ear and was pitifully begging for a breathing spell when we entered. We took compassion on him and "jawed" him to relieve him and hastened him to the room and has not been seen or heard from since.

The last arrival, we noticed was a bulky looking female of about 320 avoirdupois. We waited on her immediately (if not sooner)—entertaining the hope that we would at least hear a few words of the kind broad broad broad. "I'm a widow," she said? "I red," she puffed, "some'ing 'bout yer wantin' or boy tew hire, an' I' cum around see et a real daceant Irish gwirl like meself wouldn't answer the same." We quitted the office in disgust and silence.

This is given as an illustration of the benefit of advertising. Although a great deal of benefit was not derived from this . . . it certainly is a striking illustration. If you want anything generally known, your only chance is to advertise, and advertise in the News.
